

Name: _____

Date: _____

Directions: Read the journal entry below. Underline the clues that make you wonder. Write at least one question you have on the line below and then write your prediction to answer that question.

Dear Diary,

January 4th

I hate living on a busy street, you always hear cars going by or honking horns, which is what woke me up early at 5am. I was having the same dream I've been having for years. The dream isn't particularly interesting. It's always the same man wearing a large brown coat. He was walking out of the house directly across the street from my house. That house has been totally empty for as long as I can remember. Lately that same dream has become more frequent, and each time the dream seems to last a little longer. In the dream I had last night, the man made it to my front door and was about to ring the doorbell right before I woke up. It was the first time I could actually see his face. He looked like an older man, maybe in his 50's, and had a strange grin on his face. Anyway, today should be fun. I'm getting off work early, and then Brian and I are taking his nephews to see a movie. Ughh, I'll have to finish this entry later...the dog is barking like crazy at something outside the front door....

Question(s): _____

Prediction(s): _____

Name: _____

Date: _____

Directions: Read the journal entry below. Underline the clues that make you wonder. Write at least one question you have on the line below and then write your prediction to answer that question.

Dear Diary,

January 4th

I hate living on a busy street, you always hear cars going by or honking horns, which is what woke me up early at 5am. I was having the same dream I've been having for years. The dream isn't particularly interesting. It's always the same man wearing a large brown coat. He was walking out of the house directly across the street from my house. That house has been totally empty for as long as I can remember. Lately that same dream has become more frequent, and each time the dream seems to last a little longer. In the dream I had last night, the man made it to my front door and was about to ring the doorbell right before I woke up. It was the first time I could actually see his face. He looked like an older man, maybe in his 50's, and had a strange grin on his face. Anyway, today should be fun. I'm getting off work early, and then Brian and I are taking his nephews to see a movie. Ughh, I'll have to finish this entry later...the dog is barking like crazy at something outside the front door....

Question(s): _____

Prediction(s): _____